

G. Malik Burnett

Resident Physician, Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health, and former D.C. Policy Manager, Office of National Affairs, Drug Policy Alliance

Dr. Malik Burnett is a Resident Physician at Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health where he is developing empirical data focused on shifting drug policy from a criminal justice framework to a public health framework. Prior to joining Johns Hopkins, Dr. Burnett was the DC Policy Manager for the Office of National Affairs at the Drug Policy Alliance where he developed first-in-the-nation legislation to create a regulatory structure for legal marijuana grounded in racial and social justice. He attended Duke University, where he completed a five-year joint M.D. and M.B.A. program at Duke's School of Medicine and the Fuqua School of Business, and completed a Bachelor of Science in Psychology. He also served on the Duke University Board of Trustees.
